

Washington, DC – Today, Congressman Bruce Braley (IA-01), Chair of the Populist Caucus, released the following statement on the FAA Reauthorization:

“All over the country, we’ve seen an attack on working families and the right of workers to make their voices heard. Today, Republicans in the House struck yet another blow at the middle class by hiding an unfair union busting provision in the FAA Reauthorization.

Multi-national corporations already hold all of the cards in our economy; the government shouldn’t stack the deck against middle class families any further. As Chairman of the Populist Caucus, I’m strongly opposed to these efforts and I will continue to stand up for middle class families and American workers.”
